Auschwitz and After-Charlotte Delbo 2014-09-30 Written by a member of the French resistance who became an important literary figure in postwar France, this moving memoir of life and death in Auschwitz and the postwar experiences of women survivors has become a key text for Holocaust studies classes. This second edition includes an updated and expanded introduction and new bibliography by Holocaust scholar Lawrence L. Langer. “Delbo’s exquisite and unflinching account of life and death under Nazi atrocity grows richer and richer with time. The superb new introduction by Lawrence L. Langer illuminates the subtlety and complexity of Delbo’s meditation on memory, time, culpability, and survival, in the context of what Langer calls the ‘afterlife’ of the Holocaust. Delbo’s powerful trilogy belongs on every bookshelf.” —Sara R. Herowitz, York University Winner of the 1995 American Literary Translators Association Award

Auschwitz and After-Charlotte Delbo 1995-01-01 Delbo was arrested in 1942 for anti-German activity, and was one of 230 Frenchwomen sent to Auschwitz in January 1943. Only 49 survived.

Days and Memory-Charlotte Delbo 2001 In memory, memory meant life: remembering the humanity extinguished by the death camps and hoping to survive to tell what had been endured. In Auschwitz, Charlotte Delbo collected from memory the plays, stories, and poems that fed her companions’ spirits. There she committed to memory all that she would one day describe for future generations. In Days and Memory, her last book, completed shortly before her death, Delbo becomes the voice of memory. Poems and vignettes, dialogues and meditation, interweave her experience in the death camp with the sufferings of others around the world, depicting the power of dignity and decency in the face of inhumanity. A remarkable achievement, stack and lyrical, passionate and fiery, this virtuous performance demands attention-and rewards readers with beauty, sorrow, and hope.

None of Us Will Return-Charlotte Delbo 1968 A former French Resistance fighter records her memories of Auschwitz in terse, moving prose and verse.

Memory and Migration-Julia Creet 2014-02-24 Memory plays an integral part in how individuals and societies construct their identity. While memory is usually considered in the context of a stable, unchanging environment, this collection of essays explores the effects of immigration, forced expulsions, exile, banishment, and war on individual and collective memory. The ways in which memory affects cultural expression and historical understanding across generations is examined through case studies and theoretical approaches that underscore its mutability. Memory and Migration is a truly interdisciplinary book featuring the work of leading scholars from a varieties of fields across the Americas. The essays are collaborative, successfully responding to the central theme and expanding upon the findings of individual authors. A groundbreaking contribution to an emerging field of study, Memory and Migration provides valuable insight into the connections between memory, place, and displacement.

Traumatic Response and Reality in Charlotte Delbo’s Auschwitz and After-Brandy Lee Opav 2004

Reading Rhetoric Through Trauma-Mikaela Janet Mahin 2012 Despite many clear points of connection, the field of rhetoric has largely remained silent on the notion of trauma, or overwhelming experience. I seek to establish in the ways in which trauma simultaneously creates the exigency for rhetoric and complicates its task, using Holocaust survivor Charlotte Delbo’s groundbreaking memoir Auschwitz and After as a case study. The externalization of her memories in narrative form allows Delbo to reclaim the self devasted by trauma; the text, however, shatters conventional expectations of what constitutes a coherent narrative, as set forth by Walter Fishler in his narrative paradigm. I conclude that Auschwitz and After is significant in that it exposes the trauma it seeks to transmit, a necessary approach in the face of the loss of reason and language expounded by the Holocaust.

Theaters of Justice-Yaacov Horanman 2011 "Theaters of Justice is an important and highly readable in-depth study of post-war legal and literary events that continue to exert their influence on the contemporary understanding of justice and historical truth."—Ulrich Baer, New York University –

Traumatism Realism-Michael Rothberg 2000

Auschwitz and After-Charlotte Delbo 2006

Selling the Holocaust-Tim Cole 2017-09-29 Cole shows us an “Auschwitz-land” where tourists have become the “ultimate ruberneckers” passing by and gazing at someone else’s tragedy. He shows us a US Holocaust Museum that provides visitors with a “virtual Holocaust” experience. Writing Resistance and the Question of Gender-Lara R. Curtis 2019-10-28 This searing memoir of the author’s concentration camp experience “is the autobiography of an extraordinarily acute and sensitive mind.” —Jean Améry

Writing Wounds-Kathryn Balcom 2004 Wounds rethinks the relation between trauma memory and narrative through readings of key fictional, autobiographical and “autofictional” texts by recent French women writers.

Women’s Autobiography-V. Stewart 2003-09-16 Examining a range of twentieth century writers, including Vera Brittain, Anne Frank and Eva Hoffman, this study focuses on how recent theories of trauma can elucidate the narrative strategies employed in their autobiographical writing. The historical circumstances of each author are also considered. The result is a book which provides a vital sense of how women writers have attempted to encompass key events of the twentieth century, particularly the First World War and the Holocaust, within their life stories.

I Was a Doctor in Auschwitz-Gasela Perl 2019-02-28 Gasela Perl’s memoir is an extraordinarily candid account of women’s extreme efforts to survive Auschwitz. It was the first memoir by a woman survivor and established the model for understanding the gendered Nazi policies and practices targeting Jewish women as racially poisonous.

Auschwitz and Aftermares-Nicholas Chare 2011-01-27 In 1985, Julia Kristeva’s essay on abortion, Pouvoirs de l’terrorer, was first published in French and soon reprinted as a case study. I argue, drawing upon the work of Susan J. Brison, that Kristeva’s notion of a ‘written form’ of knowledge, in which trauma memory is given linguistic expression, has as its purpose the externalization of the author’s experience as a means of finding a socially acceptable means of addressing their own trauma. Kristeva’s notion of a ‘written form’ of knowledge is not a product of personal trauma, but rather the result of the author’s search for a written form of knowledge in response to the collective trauma of the Holocaust.

The Literary Analysis of Charlotte Delbo’s Concentration Camp Re-presentation-Nickol Thatcher 2000 Among the testimonial writings on WWII, those of Charlotte Delbo (1913-1985) occupy a recognized place in the literature of atrocity. Critics and researchers who have been interested in the “truth imperative” of her experience have been confounded, yet most have not considered the way she dealt with conventions of literary genre she chose, influenced that affected her, and the cultural and situational elements which had a bearing on her as a writer. This work brings together Delbo’s writing on her concentrationary experience, including plays and prose, with her with the works that are not related to that experience, and examines her literary aspects and factors which played a role in shaping them.
