Resurrecting Bertha--Rob Siegel 2013-09-15 Many people, cars are just appliances to be disposed of when they rust, become unreliable, or are outgrown. But to car people, it's different. Cars are like photographs that occupy physical space. They hold memories that trigger memories, and remind us of who we once were. In addition, to people, the relationship with the car is a real thing. Many enthusiasts pine for the cars of their youth. Sometimes they literally pine for their youth, trying to find them and reclaiming that old spark. In Resurrecting Bertha, Rob Siegel assures you that you're normal (well, as normal as anything is with car people), and embarks on this journey himself. Writing in his trademark Hack Mechanic voice that's enthralled readers for 35 years, Rob describes his original eight-year relationship with his car and how the reconnection with the car was so much deeper than he expected. Resurrecting Bertha is about more than just the nuts and bolts; it's about deciding what's important, the joy of doing good, and how, if you do it right, not only can you go home again, but you can do so in the same car.
